

Sex distribution of population in Roanoke County

Source: US Census, 2005-2007 American Community Survey

The population of both males and females are increasing. The rate of increase of population for both males and females has remained relatively steady. As can be seen below, the gender distribution has not fluctuated more than one percentage point in any decade; females have made up 52-53% of the population and males have made up 47-48% of the population for every Census since 1980.

Source: US Census, 2005-2007 American Community Survey